YIRCoF '09 Yeditepe International Research Conference on Foresight September 4 - 6, 2009, Istanbul "Methodological Issues in Foresight Studies"

(involving some combination of five essential elements — anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra-national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and internationally. In this context, the corporate responses to 1 April 2010 EVELL-Kalamus				Selected papers will be publis Foresig	40 EFES Pilser
Image: Second				· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	0
Foresight at the national level has been used to address (i) choices within the domain of science and technology, and (ii) the structures by which science and innovation achieve impacts upon the economy and society. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at this level. Regional Foresight Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region of a supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national evel. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements — anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra- national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to an industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to DEVELL- Kalams.		Conference Venue	following areas:	papers in the foll	\bigcirc choices within the domain of science and technology, and (ii) the structures by which science and innovation achieve impacts upon the economy and society. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at this level. Regional Foresight. Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region of a considered in this track. Cutour power was suppra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national evel. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements – anticipation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to 				National Foresight	Emerald
 the structures by which science and innovation achieve impacts upon the economy and society. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at this level. Regional Foresight. Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region of a considered in this track. Supra-national Foresight thas been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define for and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. Usub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements – anticipation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight concerts to be addressed at these levels. The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to 				Foresight at the national level ha upon the economy and society. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at this level. Regional Foresight Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region to be addressed at this level. Supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and new industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to industries use Foresight to dete YEAR new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at this level. Regional Foresight Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region of a sub-national Foresight provide a smaller region of a analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for manalysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Yeditepe University Doğa Bectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to 1 April 2010 The presight to detect and prepare responses to
Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region of a considered in this track. Supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national level. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements – anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra- national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to			national Foresight exercises and	experience gained from the natio	VENI
Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region of a considered in this track. Supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national level. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements – anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra- national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to	Same Same		and/or questions to be addressed		TENI
Both supra-national Foresight, covering more than one country, and sub-national Foresight, covering a smaller region of a considered in this track. Supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national level. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements – anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra- national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to	RA	Contraction of the state of the			RAKI
KOMSUTI country or neighbour regions of multiple countries, will be considered in this track. Supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national evel. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements — anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to	and the other distance of the			-Both supra-national Foresight, cov
CARDENT ENSERTS Supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national isveries Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements – anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra- national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to		Barris and a state of the state		and sub-national Foresight, cove	r r
 CADDAGE TEMERK SAM Supra-national Foresight has been useful to promote joint analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national level. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements — anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to 	- A STRATE			considered in this track	komşufiri analysis of common problems, detect opportunities for cooperation, identify complementary attributes, and define infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements — anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to EVELL - Kalamus EVELL EVELL Keter and prepare responses to EVELL Keter and the detect and prepare responses to Keter and the sub-rational boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to Keter and the sub-formational prepare responses to Keter and the sub-formation and prepare responses to Ke	-	to the	s been useful to promote joint	^{AN} Supra-national Foresight has be	ÇAĞDAŞ EKMEK SAN
Infrastructures needed, which are not feasible at the national level. Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements – anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. Yeditepe University Doğa This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to			ems, detect opportunities for	 analysis of common problems
Sub-national Foresight is the application of foresight methods (involving some combination of five essential elements — anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra- national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to DEVELL-Kalamus	-				loca:
(involving some combination of five essential elements — anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to DEVELL-Kalamus					Culou anticipation, participation, networking, vision, action) to inform and orient decisions that are taken at the sub-national level. This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supranational and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to 	Club	Yeditepe University Doğa Clu
This track will draw upon the experience gained from the supra- national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to DEVELL-Kalamus national and sub-national Foresight exercises and new research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to			aken at the sub-national level.	and orient decisions that are taker research methodologies and/or questions to be addressed at these levels. Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to DEVELL-Kalamus Sectoral and Corporate Foresight The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to 1 April 2010 DEVELUE Kalamis
The challenges faced by firms reflect the structural changes taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to taking place in the economy and society. A new global setting of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to	13		ate Foresight	Sectoral and Corporate of the world economy is defining the framework for operation of the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to	6 K	There wanted in the state the industrial sector both inside the national boundaries and internationally. In this context, the corporate sector and industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to 1 April 2010 industries use Foresight to detect and prepare responses to DEVELL-Kalamis	2		ide the national boundaries and	the industrial sector both inside t
	Ser and a second se	THE ONLY ON THE such changes. The experience gained at the corporate and		DEVELİ - Kalamış	ce gained at the corporate and	such changes. The experience g sectoral level, and main research and methodological issues will be discussed in this track.				will be discussed in this track.	